There is not such a rush this year for the mounted police contract for bay as is generally the case, and prices are likely to range higher than usual. Many bay fields that yielded well last year are quite barren, and few are as good as they used to be. This is especially the case with the grounds near town.

JOHN WATSON, of Beaver lake, who has just returned from a hunting and prospecting trip to Battle river southeast of Beaver lake says that he discovered gold in the Battle river and will go west to work and find shortly. The gold is similar to that found in the Saskatchewan. The Battle river is very low, but there appears to be a dam by the Indian department towards the construction of a grist mill in that settlement, the only condition being that in the event of a mill being erected Indian work shall have precedence on two days in each week and shall not be tolled more than the sixth bushel. A REPORT has reached this place within the week that several fatal cases of black leg have occurred among cattle north of the Bow river near Calgary. It is to be fervently hoped that the reports are incorrect. The existence of such a report makes it most urgent that the authorities should investigate at once as to its truth. It is a very serious matter and if it is true it is a very serious matter and if it is true it is a very serious matter.

DEAD.

Hon. John Norquay ex-premier of Manitoba died at his residence in Winnipeg on the morning of Saturday, July 6th. Up to the previous Thursday evening he was in the enjoyment of excellent health. A post mortem examination showed the cause of death to be an accidental twist in the bowels, which brought on inflammation. A public funeral was tendered by the government of the province which took place on July 8th from the parliament building to St. John's cemetery, and was the greatest funeral that ever took place in Manitoba. Mr. Norquay was born in the Red River settlement on May 8th, 1841. He was educated at St. John's academy, and was married in June 1862 to Miss Elizabeth Setter also a native of Red River. In the first election to the first legislature of Manitoba, he was elected for High Bluff, which division he represented until the general elections of 1874 when he was elected for St. Andrews, which constituency he represented in the provincial house until its reconstruction as a part of Kildonan district, which latter district he represented at the time of his death. He was minister of public works in the first government of Manitoba and remained a cabinet minister except, from July 1874 till March 1875, until October of 1878 when he became premier, succeeding R. A. Davis. He continued as premier from October 1878 until December 1887 when he resigned and was succeeded by Dr. Harrison. After ceasing to hold public office he entered upon the life insurance business, which he was engaged in at his death. Mrs. Norquay and seven children—five sons and two daughters—survive him, and are provided for by a life insurance of $14,000. He leaves no other property. In person Mr. Norquay was very large and stout and generally enjoyed good health. He was cut off with the prospect of a long, active and useful life before him. He was of a most kindly disposition and to this feature of his character he owed a great deal of his popularity, especially with his old friends of the Red River settlement, while his commanding abilities as an orator, a politician and a leader of men won him a large and enthusiastic following among the new settlers. It is not given to any man to secure the universal approval of his fellow men for himself or his acts. Especially is this the case regarding men in public life. And yet although Mr. Norquay was in public life so long, although it was his fortune to be the most prominent figure in Manitoba politics at a most critical and contentious time, although he suffered so shortly ago a most signal political defeat, it can truthfully be said of him as it can of few that as an honest man in public and in private life he earned and received the respect of all.

If the name is given at baptism the certificate of the clergyman baptizing must be produced. Every person authorized by law to celebrate marriages is required to report every marriage he celebrates to the division registrar within 90 days from date. The occupier of a dwelling in which a death takes place or if the death has not taken place in a house then any person present or acquainted with the circumstances, or the coroner attending the inquest if there has been one, must report to the division registrar before the interment. An error in any entry of birth, marriage or death may be corrected within one year by the division registrar on enquiry. The registrar general shall keep a record of all the births and marriages and deaths of which he is informed by the division registrars, which record may be searched by all persons, and certificates given therefrom to be used as evidence in court. It shall be the duty of the division registrar to prosecute. The fees for registration are 10 cents each and are paid to the division registrars from the general revenue fund of the territories and not by the person registering.

Lethbridge News, July 3: "The continual lack of rain, almost unexampled at this season, is the cause of serious uneasiness in regard to the crops, and unless we have some downpours within the next ten days, the outlook for the harvest will be anything but encouraging. Another matter of hardly less moment is the scanty hay crop on the prairie. Hay is a prime necessity in this country, and we depend for our hay almost altogether on the natural meadow crop of the prairies. We understand that on the level hay is very scarce, but that the Milk River Ridge, which intercepts the moisture bearing clouds, and has at any rate had a fair proportion of rain, affords some chance of supplying at least, part of the local demand."
